

Little Penguins need your help!

Photo courtesy of Leighton De Barros

Researchers from Murdoch University are working on a new project using satellite tagging to help protect the Little Penguins in Perth.

This will help them to track the movements of the penguins and gather essential information such as where they travel and forage. Researchers can also use sightings of the penguins both out at sea or washed ashore.

If you are interested in helping out and keeping fit by doing short organised beach walks along specific areas of Cockburn Sound, Warnbro Sound or Comet Bay, or you want to inform us about a penguin sighting, then contact Belinda on our Penguin Hotline 0405 397 913.

Australian Government
Australian Research Council

Department of Environment and Conservation

Australian Government
Department of Defence

Murdoch
UNIVERSITY

DISCOVERERS WELCOME

www.murdoch.edu.au